The crime-fighting duo of TV bounty hunter Duane "Dog" Chapman and his wife, Beth, were honored by Hawaii lawmakers yesterday for getting crooks off the street. Members of the Hawaii House of Representatives, Rep. Gene Ward, left, applauded the Chapmans for their work at capturing criminals and then giving them hope for a better way of life. "I'm the poster child for rehabilitation in America," said Duane Chapman, star of the Hawaii-based reality series "Dog the Bounty Hunter," which airs on A&E.
